SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. The Manchurian-Korean border is now closely guarded by North Korean Border Guard Units.
2. All travelers entering North Korea from Manchuria are required to submit personal histories and character references to these units. The travelers are detained for four days and are thoroughly investigated by the border guards.
3. After obtaining permission from the border guards to remain in North Korea, all travelers are sent to a "training center" at Hoeryong (Kainei) (129-45, 42-25). Here an attempt is made to indoctrinate the travelers with the principles of Communism and the duties of a revolutionary. The men are required to stay at the "training center" for a period of from two weeks to two months; the women, from two to ten days. They are then permitted to proceed to their destinations.
